Website cookies and browser storage

Website cookie and review-service notice | Updated 23 November 2026

Your choice

The website starts with necessary features only. Choose Accept all to allow the optional Google review display, or Reject optional to keep it off. Use Cookie settings at any time to change your choice. The core website remains available if you reject optional services.

Remembering your preference

We use your browser's local storage to remember your choice. The entry, blue-dental-cookie-choice, contains your optional-service preference, its notice version and the time you chose. It is used to remember your privacy choice, not for advertising or tracking across websites.

Your choice lasts for six months. We ask again when it expires, when the purpose of optional services changes, or if you clear browser storage or use another browser or device. A new choice replaces the old one. If your browser cannot save the choice, it applies only while the page stays open.

Optional Google reviews through Trustindex

If you allow optional services, we load an embedded review display from cdn.trustindex.io. Trustindex supplies selected five-star reviews from our public Google listing, including reviewer names, review dates, ratings and any displayed profile pictures. This selection is not our overall Google rating; a link lets you read all reviews on Google.

Loading the display sends technical information, such as your IP address and browser details, to Trustindex and the services it uses to deliver the content. The provider may use cookies or similar storage under its own policies. Its processing, retention and any international transfers are described in the Trustindex privacy policy (trustindex.io/privacy-policy/).

The embedded display does not load until you give permission. Rejecting optional services later removes it and stops further loading from this page. This cannot undo information already sent or erase storage already set by another service; use your browser settings to clear that storage if you wish.

Photos, links and other services

Our photographs and carousels are hosted with this website. We have not added separate analytics, advertising tools or an embedded map. Booking, WhatsApp, Google and other external links open another service only when you follow them; that service has its own privacy notice. The hosting platform may use security or sign-in technologies covered by its own notices.
